Step 1: Who Am I? (Assessing My Personality, Skills and Career Preferences)

Relax and take the time to do some serious thinking about yourself. Yes, think about you! EUREKA has four career Self-Assessment strategies. Each strategy is very different, and asks you to view yourself from different perspectives.

A. Inner Heroes: a quick and easy assessment. It will have you look at yourself from a personality perspective. Go to Inner Heroes.

B. How Do I Learn? Gives you a review of what your dominant learning styles(s) may be. Go to How Do I Learn.

C. What Are My Values? Discover your motivations and what is truly important to you. Go to What Are My Values?.

D. MicroSkills: more intense than the other three assessments. It asks you to view yourself in terms of transferable skills. Transferable skills can be used in many different careers or jobs. Go to MicroSkills.

E. True Colors: a fun and easy to use assessment. It will have you look at yourself from a personality perspective. Go to True Colors.

F. Occ-U-Sort: an interesting assessment. It asks you to decide what career requirements of the labor market you are able and willing to meet. This is the only assessment we have that will question you about your salary and educational goals. Go to Occ-U-Sort.

G. Career Assessment Worksheet
MY PATH – WHERE AM I GOING?

Step 2: Where am I going? (Careers)

You may tend to worry a lot, because you may feel responsible for things not going as planned. Planning and having a good plan is very important. Always be prepared is your motto.

You sometimes provide for and support the structure of social situations. You may value order and cherish the traditions of home, family, and friends. You can be depended upon to get things done. You tend to be where you say you will be in a timely manner. Punctuality is another of your attributes.

Proper behavior and doing things "the right way" may give you security. You show someone else how to do it.

Your desk, work space and personal environment are usually well organized. You have a way of knowing where items under your control are located.

You tend to be matter of fact, realistic and more interested in getting things done. You are not easily ruffled by situations.

WHAT ARE MY VALUES? QUESTIONNAIRE

Introduction

Values are desires that motivate you and indicate what is important to you. Values are an integral part of planning for your future and are also a key element in deciding how you live your life. The goal of this activity is to help you understand the values that are important to you and how you can use them to set priorities and make decisions that are important to you for yourself.

Complete the values Clarifier and see what you may value most at this time in your life. Discuss your results with those close to you so that they also use this tool to learn more about themselves. NOTE: You do not have to complete this exercise in one session. Your answers are automatically saved (after clicking continue), so feel free to take the time to carefully consider your responses.

We wish you a happy and fruitful learning experience!

Medical Laboratory Technologies Program

Program Description:
Generally prepares individuals to perform technical tasks and procedures in clinical, medical, or laboratory environments. Includes instruction in scientific and clinical principles; theory and application of clinical laboratory techniques; and basic principles of hematology; medical microbiology; immunohematology; immunology; clinical chemistry, and urinalysis.

GENERAL DESCRIPTION
Medical Laboratory programs involve the study of human blood and body fluids using various scientific methods and equipment. Medical Laboratory programs: Medical Laboratory Technician (associate's degree) and Medical Laboratory Technologist (bachelor's degree). Medical Laboratory Technician-Associate programs are interspersed with the results of routine procedures. These are two-year associate degree programs, concentrated in vocational schools, and hospital schools.

Medical Laboratory Technician-certificate programs are designed to provide individuals with the knowledge and skills to perform a limited number of specialized tasks. These one-year certificate programs are offered at hospitals and some medical laboratory technologists and technicians associate degree programs.

Medical Laboratory Technology programs consist of three years of professional experience. Pre-technical course work is offered at colleges and universities, but the advanced training programs are affiliated with a college which awards a bachelor's or master's degree. Master's and doctoral degree programs are offered in specialty areas.

Programs in Clinical/Medical Laboratory Technology/Technician involves the study of clinical laboratory scientists/medical technologists, to perform routine medical laboratory procedures and instruction in general laboratory procedures and skills; laboratory skills; and the basic principles of hematology; medical microbiology; immunohematology; immunology; clinical chemistry, and urinalysis.
